

September, 2012

Miguel Ángel Muñoz enjoys success in movies and TV drama

International MAM

He is shooting with Coronado and Sharon Stone, and at the same time triumphs in Mexican television.

ON COSTA BRAVA

The actor who became famous with the series from Antena 3 Un paso adelante, starred in El síndrome de Ulises (The Ulysses' Syndrome) and whom we lost track of in Spain after his participation in the sitcom Vida loca (Telecinco), has been living for three years between Los Ángeles and Madrid, and he is currently working in Mexico while at the same time shooting a movie between Costa Brava and Romania together with José Coronado, Andy García and Sharon Stone. The movie is called What About Love, a production directed by Klaus Menzel in which he plays a young man who takes a trip together with an American tourist, interpreted by Marielle Jaffe (Scream 4). They film a movie about people's attitude toward love without knowing that they are experiencing their own romance. In addition, during this period Miguel Ángel portrayed one of the star characters in the Mexican TV drama Infames. Miguel Ángel talks to us about his new movie, his projects in Mexico during the presentation of the shooting of What About love in Tossa de Mar (Costa Brava).

