

Festival de Cine Internacional Miami 2013

By Annette López, Guide from About.com

The 30th anniversary edition of the Miami International Film Festival is being held this weekend, and the local movie theaters will be filled with directors, performers and exceptional films from all over the world for our enjoyment.

Miami Dade College, in charge of this festival since 2003, has undertaken to select “with tweezers” the best production from acclaimed directors to include them in this fabulous festival. And of course they always consider carefully Iberian-American cinema.

The MIFF (Miami International Film Festival) has been held since 1984; every end of February and beginning of March they offer us films that would take a lot of trouble to find since the emphasis is on Latin American and European cinema, which are not precisely the most commercial films. For this reason, the festival has in many cases served as a launch pad to the US market for directors and actors such as Pedro Almodóvar, Antonio Banderas, Carmen Maura, Fernando Trueba, Eliseo Subiela, Wim Wenders and Abbas Kiarostami.

Miguel Ángel Muñoz and Gabriela De La Garza, (Capadocia)

Miguel Angel Muñoz, Gabriela De La Garza, Jaie LaPlante, Miguel Angel Oliva, HBO (Capadocia)